Scentimental Journey

Malaika Byng takes a look at Fuego, the company fuelling the fashion for luxury home fragrances in South Africa

'A DINNER PARTY is not complete without a designer scented candle flickering in the background,' says Shannon Baker. Since founding Fuego in 2001 – importers of luxury home and body fragrance products to South Africa – the Jo'burg-born entrepreneur has made a career out of this philosophy, propelling the trend for such products in the country with her delicious array of designer brands.

Baker's passion for beautiful things began in London. 'I fell in love with designer home and body fragrances and I wanted to make them available in South Africa,' she says. Having spotted the gap in the market, she leapt in head first and now supplies a stellar list of clients including Cécile & Boyd's, Lim, Loads of Living, Osiers and Loft Living.

She continues to travel extensively throughout Europe in search of products with their own unique signature. Fuego now represents four high-end brands, namely La Compagnie De Provence Marseille, Geodesis, Lothantique and Designers Guild Home Fragrances, and is soon to bring UK-based favourite Nougat to our shores. So, thanks to Fuego, there's no excuse for your home not to smell every bit as good as it looks.
